No Protracted Struggle Over the New Rules to be Tolerated.

THE DEMOCRATS MUST TALK RAPIDLY.

Constitutional Objections to Voting Any Aid for Johnstown.

The fight of the Democrats against the new rules of the House will be brief. Speaker Reed has his forces well in line, and will have the rules adopted in short order. Government aid for Johnstown may be hard to obtain.

THOM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT,] WASHINGTON, January 12 .- The muchtalked-of fight over the question of rules is expected to come up in the House on Tuesday. In all probability there will be no preliminary skirmish in committee, for Mr. Carlisle, the only active Democratic member, has informed the Republican members that he would not waste time by fighting them single-handed, but would reserve his comments on their work for utterance on the floor. He has, however, been carefully studying the copy of their report, which has held by the men in the Duquesne school been furnished him, and is preparing himself for a stubbern fight.

There is no better parliamentarian in the House than Mr. Carlisle, and in this instance, at least, he can rely upon the solid support of all the members of his party. He will, therefore, be able to conduct a very troublesome contest, and if Mr. Reed were not the very positive man he is in the Speaker's chair, there might be some reason to believe that the report of the committee would not be adopted in its entirety.

REED'S WILL IS LAW. As it is, however, Mr. Reed's will is law in the House, and while he would not stoop to make a manifestly unfair decision, he will not hesitate to take advantage of all the powers which are incontestibly vested in the Speaker's office under the common parlia-

On his side Mr. Reed is marshaling his forces for the conflict. A pretty good gen-eral idea of what is proposed to be done has got out among the members of the House, and if there has been any Republican who has shown a disposition to disagree with the position assumed by the Committee on mittee, Mr. Cannon, was inclined to side with the Democrats on some of the proposed elhanges, notably the one allowing general legislation to be tacked on as a rider to an appropriation bill. But Mr. Reed has suggested to Mr. Cannon the advisability of his keeping in line with his party, and although the arguments used have not been made known, the effects are quite apparent, and Mr. Cannon is not likely to make any scene by siding with the Democratic minority.

THE PARTY UNITED. The consequence of Mr. Reed's tactics is a united party on this particular question, and although there will be some very lively onsideration, the result will be its ado in every important particular. The fight will not be a very long one, for the Demo-crats will not be allowed to enter upon an extended course of filibustering. Mr. Reed reserves to bimself the right to determine if a motion is put for purely dilatory purposes, and in cases of that sort he will simply re-fuse to recognize the member who makes it. The course of the Democrats will be to Something of that aget ought to be done at once, either by the general Government or by the State. It is absolutely necessary for the future safety of the town. The present channel is barely sufficient to carry off an ordinary rainfall, and a heavy storm always overflows its banks. I have heard that there will be a great deal of objection to the bill in Congress, on constitutional grounds, and I think myself that it is the business of the State to make the proposed improvement. Johnstown is slowly recovering from the effects of the flood. The relief fund has at last been distributed, and consequently there is no destitution. I think the action of the Governor in that matter was greatly to be condemned.

of Total Abstineuce. The Men's Total Abstinence Society of newed their temperance pledges for the ensuing year. The pledge was administered to them by Rev. Father Sheedy, paster of the church, and who is a firm believer in total abstinence. About 100 men of the parish repeated the vows made a year ago. Father Sheedy preached an eloquent sermon on the advantages to be gained by any per-son refusing to touch liquor in any form. He dwelt on the fact that it made good citizens of them, and they were an honor to the church and community held by the men in the Duquesne school hall. A number of speeches were made, in which the "speak-easies" of the ward received a scoring. One of the members present urged the society as a body to make war on the "speak-easies." The majority of those present thought it would be a good idea, but were a little backward about taking a prominent part in the war. THOUSANDS OF MEN IDLE.

Continued Warm Wenther Preventing Work in the Anthracite Region. SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE.

POTTSVILLE, January 12.-It is a strange fact that 20,000 hard coal miners in this anthracite bason, nearly half of whom are now idle, should be studying climatic changes and wondering whether cold weather has forever disappeared for this latitude, instead of being at work mining coal. Warm Rules, Mr. Reed has been informed of it, and has not failed to administer a rebuke or drop a gentle hint in the ear of the fractious individual.

One of Reed's colleagues on the committee, Mr. Cannon, was inclined to side with the Democrats on some of the proposed changes, notably the one allowing general legislation to be tacked on as a rider to see the region.

Stead of being at work mining coal. Warm weather continues, the miners keep idle, and the reports come up from tidewater that there is enough coal there to last for a year if there is no more cold weather. A feeling of gloom pervades the entire region.

There is still great uneasiness among the Brice managers, although they claim to have secured pledges from the bolters. A RAILROAD WAR

Brought to an Eed by an Arrangemen Which Will Check Competition -The Central and Union Pacific Adjust Their Dif-

> SAN FRANCISCO, January 12 .- From the highest authority it is learned that a big deal, involving business running up into the millions, has been entered into by the Union and Central Pacific systems. The compact, which has been tems. The compact, which has been kept in the deepest secresy, was signed one week ago last Monday and the war cloud which hovered for months over these companies has passed away, leaving a clear sky for the present; at least until the Union Pacific builds into Southern Pacific territory. For several months past the Central Pacific has fought the Union Pacific to the extent of going into Eastern Nevada, carrying freight through that State down through California, and the East by the Sunset route fast freight to New Orleaps, where it is sent to Chicago via the Illinois Central.

Central.

If the freight was billed to New York and the far East it was carried from New Orleans by Huntington's line of steamers. This warfare on the Union Pacific of course took dollars out of their pockets, and in retalia-tion the Union Pacific bought a line of steamers plying between this city and Portland, Oregon, sending wool, fruit, etc., at cheap rates via the Oregon Short Line thence connecting with the Union Pacific main line and connections to Chicago and elsewhere, making much quicker time than the Central and Southern Pacific and getting back at their rivals in a shape which alarmed the magnates of the last named

This is about the time of year when almost very good circumstances. He became interested in railroad investments, and is a living example of one who was stripped of his possessions in a reorganization scheme. It is said Mr. Brice was the projector of the railroad deal that carried Mr. Munson down to financial ruin in his old days, and the latter now proposes to even up joining a combination to defeat the former's election to the United States Senate. Several of Mr. Brice was the became intermediate and something had to be done to get that trade. The Central Pacific accordingly made a proposition to the Union Pacific would discontinue the taking of any overland freight by steamer to Portland the Central Pacific would sign a contract to run a through freight from San Francisco to Ogden, connecting with the Union Pacific. Both systems came to terms, and thus the Central tems came to terms, and thus the Central Pacific resumes its monopoly of the over-land treight business and leaves the traffic of Nevada and adjacent States and Territories to the Union Pacific.

Temperance People. The interference of bad boys with a religious meeting last night finally necessitated the discontinuance of services.

For some time past a branch mission connected with the Evangelical Lutheran Church on Grant street has been conducted in the Fifth Avenue Market House, facing Miltenberger street. The behavior of the mob in plain view and ensy hearing of the moo in plain view and ensy hearing of the congregation was vulgar and boisterous in the extreme. Some of the members went outside and remonstrated with the boys, but their pleadings were only laughed at and brought forth howls of derision. An effort was made to find the police officer in the vicinity, but none could be seen. The members then started out to ar-rest the boys themselves, but after chasing a number of the Republicans will not be able to attend the Legislature on Tuesday, and there are already indications it has been arranged for several to be conveniently and they returned to the attack with added

Cross Streets Dangerons.

The residents of the Twelfth ward are nuch annoyed at the city authorities, because of the insufficient light supplied to them at night. There is a petition to be formulated and circulated among the citizens for signature, which will contain a citation of the existing abuses in the ward. Not only have they no light, but with 13,000 residents they have only six policemen.

In every cross street between Nineteenth street and Thirty-third street there is hardly any light to be seen. People who live in streets running parallel with Penn avenue are obliged to grope their way in darkness almost so thick that it could be cut with a knife to their homes. Mr. Larry Wall, a prominent resident, who is the author of the petition, said last night that the way the Twelfth ward is neglected on the part of the city is shameful. He said that he was speaking to a school director of the ward about the scandalous neglect of the city authorities in lighting the streets a few nights ago. The official turned around and said: "Oh, it is only Mulberry alley!" Mr. Wall asserts that the Twelfth ward is not peopled with the arustocratic fraternity, and he attributes that to the city's neglect.
